vol. 2

EDITORIAL

Players is a geeky magazine/website about media, written mostly in Italian. Over the years we hosted on our pages a wide range of artists, photographers and illustrators, and collecting their works in monographic issues always sounded like a good idea. The choice of making that available in English was an obvious one: we strive for everybody to witness the incredible talent of the people featured on our pages. After the successful experiment of the first The Art of Players, published about a year ago, we decided to give it another go, with some tweaks. Long story short, The Art of Players Vol.2 is made with interactivity in mind. What you're checking out right now is a stripped down, non-interactive version of what we have made available on the iBook Store – for free. If you like it, go ahead and try the other one. This is just the beginning: we wanted to try out our new workflow before committing to 100-pages long issues, but those are coming too, and soon enough.

If you feel like taking a look at the rest of our production, visit www.playersmagazine.it. Also, don't forget to let us know your impressions at info@playersmagazine.it.

SOFIA RONDELLI

Class 1991, Sofia Rondelli was born in the small town of Pietrasanta, Tuscany.

She obtained her high school diploma from the art lyceum "Artemisia Gentileschi", and is currently enrolled in a painting course held at the Accademia di Belle Arti in Carrara.

She decided to dedicate herself to illustration in the last couple of years, and she's keen on networking with other painters, artists and photographers. Her style, embracing a fantastic dimension and interpreting human figures clear of melancholy, is strongly rooted in the visual and spiritual achievements of Andrej Tarkovskij's filmography.

Memories, remembrance, the lack of involvement of the historical process and the overcoming of materialism are the guidelines of her artistic trajectory, often supported by her writings.

Her first personal exposition was held in 2010 at SpaziArti Ungallery in Milan, city in which Sophia fosters an ongoing collaboration with Open Art. She took part to several collective expositions (Brescia, Pietrasanta, Sciacca, Livorno, Carrara, etc.). Her illustrations complemented A che servono le Rose, a poem by Vincenzo Gasparro, published by L'Arca Fenice.

VIRGINIA MORI

Virginia Mori was born in Cattolica, Emilia-Romagna, in 1981. She now lives and work in Pesaro, Marche.

Her illustration and animation skills were perfected at Istituto Statale d'Arte in Urbino, a formative experience that helped building and strengthening her artistic sensibility, and push her towards traditional animation shorts and professional illustration. Virginia's work was featured in several art events around Italy. Winning the "SRG SSR idee suisse" at Annessy Call for Project prize allowed her to work on the short animation movie Il gioco del silenzio, selected and awarded in multiple international festivals.

The "Abbaye de Fonteyraund" recognition gave her the means to work on a second movie during October 2011.

Her ballpoint pen drawings are exposed both in Italy and abroad. Her current project, in collaboration with the Withstand collective, focuses on a music video directed by Virgilio Villoresi.
